

Belt Around the Earth

Problem: We have an iron belt around the equator (which we assume is circular), but Mother Earth complains that it is too tight (all those landfills?). We loosen it so that it stands one foot above every point on the equator. How long a piece do we have to add to the belt? What if the belt was around a circular swimming pool? A quarter (coin)?